Topic: Teaching and Learning English beyond the boundaries of Disciplines

Presentation: 'Pronunciation tricks for kids'

Pronunciation is one of the building blocks of learning languages. It is essential for listening and speaking, and it has substantial benefits for reading and writing. So if it is so vital, how do you deal with this discipline in the context of young learners' classes? This presentation purports to show useful pronunciation teaching tricks, which will surely constitute an innovative approach to the teaching of sounds that goes well beyond the strict boundaries of pronunciation into the realms of reading and writing.
